THE GOLD AND SILVER BALLS. I have done this for, many cousins day a little boy was playing already and hope to do soo for as at the edge of a lake. He had many more still. I should delight to a small, black ball which he be the one to send you a letter all threw up into the air to see how high at would go. As he threw it he put can this small hands to catch it, but it fell into the lake. He sat down on a roca and started to cry.

A fairy arose from the lake and saked him why he cried. He answered that his ball had fallen into the water and mether had told him it he lost it he would never get another. The fairy went under the water and then arose with a beautiful goiden ball and said:

"Is this your ball?"

"Is this your ball?"
"No, it isn't," answered the boy.
The fairy went under again and soon came up with a bright silver ball and asked whether that one was his. He said it wasn't, and she went down and brought a black one. This time the boy said:

"Yes, this one is mine." The Fairy Queen was delighted with bim, and as a reward for his honesty let him have the three balls. He went home very happy. As soon as he reached home he told his playmates all about it. One of the boys went down to the lake and dropped his ball

The Fairy Queen arose, just as she did for the other boy. He made believe he was crying and she asked him what had happened. He told her he had lost his ball. The fairy dissevered and soon came up with a he had lost his ball. The fairy disappeared and soon came up with a beautiful golden ball.

"Is this yours?" she asked.

"Yes, that is mine," he said eagerly.
She gave him the ball, but as soon as he touched it it crumbled into dust.

"For being so greedy you shall receive neither the gold ball nor your own."

The boy had to go home, hanging his head in shame.

WHEN Cheruit presented her versions of the Mode in Fur for this winter there was one cape wnich dominated the collection. And, though there were many beautiful Fur Fashions in Paris, this one cape by CHERUIT eclipsed them all. The original model in moleskin cost us $1,405.12 to import. We have reproduced this cape in all modish furs; in Hudson seal (dyed muskrat), at $700; in kolinsky, at $1650; in moleskin, at $650; in ermine, at $1200.

Election Sale of Men's Shoes, $7.85

All new. Values which top the ticket

We happened on them just in the nick of time for our election sale for men. A manufacturer had overstocked and wanted quick cash-we got the lot and you will agree that there could hardly be a better election day shoe offer.

They're of Norwegian leather, in tan and black with extra wide shanks and heels and the very newest of heavy punching and heavy stitching all around heel and soles. The high shoes have saddle instep with heavy punching.

Young men and college men particularly will appreciate these. The damp-proof fibre slip sole, the squarish wide English soles, and the general heavy effect is what is most in demand right now. Ail sizes and a quantity to assure good choice. -
